The workshop, which took place from June 3 to July 12, 2013, was a primarily self-directed learning experience. Participants were invited to engage in activities that included creating and debugging Scratch programs, exploring and remixing projects on the Scratch website, designing and curating learning resources, planning and developing an independent project, and contributing to the workshop learning community by sharing feedback and collaborating with other participants.

Participants were encouraged to maintain a design notebook, as a record of their activities and reflections. To be eligible to receive a certificate of participation, participants needed to submit their design notebook six times throughout the workshop.
